In deep, alternate braid. Bits of storm when winds are warring, Bits of calm when blasts are stayed, Bits of silence and of uproav, Bits of smalight and of shade.

Bits of forests smothered hollow, And of open sunoy glade; Stelpes of garden and of moorland-Heath and rose together laid. Screet leafes brown October, April's youngest, greenest blade. Bits of day spring and of sunset,

Of the midnight, of the noon; Snow and ice of pale December, a 1 + Living flush of crimson June. Sands of Egypt, fields of cenron,

Rush of Jordan, u-' sweep of Nilo;
Wells of March - deales of Elim, Single swm and Carmel's smile. peths of valley, peaks of mountain. Stretched of verdure loving plain ; Barron miles of ocean slaingle, Fertile strains of smiling grain. Broken shafts of Tyrion columns, Rolled and worn by wave and time: Miles of colounds and grandeur, Luxor's still, majestic prime.

Voice of trumpet and of Inte; The thunder showers land lashing, And the dewfall, soft and muto, Now the garland, now the coffin, Now the wedding, now the tomb;

Nowithe festal shout of thousands, Now the churchyard's lonely gloom Now the song above the living. Now the chant above the dead: The smooth smile of infant beauty, Age's wan and furrowed head.

The Story which Bangs Tried to Tell to Jones, Smith and Brown. Mr. Editor: You have been particularly fortunate, if, in the course of your pil grimage, you have never been prevented from hearing an interesting story very much as we were prevented from hearing the story, which Bangs tried to tell to Jones Smith and Brown. Bangs - As you are anxious to hear about Mr. Titcomb's misf-riune. I will tell the story. It was on the third of July, 1823, when-Smith-What a coincidence! the very day and year, when my grandmother died he was so hale, we never thought she had been a drummer, who was in the old French war. He used to say, that he nev Jones-I know all about that. You can pot find the name of Titcomb in the Boston FARMERS ATTENTION Directory of 1789. The reason is plain enough-there was no Titcomb in town .-You see how-Bangs-The story I am to relate is not of Mr. Titcomb, who was living, in 1789. I was about to say, that, on the third of July, 1834, Mr. Titcomb was in Brown-Permit me, before you proceed, to enquire how he was related to the Tibbetses, and also, Brown I thought you did, and I was thinking I could explain how it was. There was a Tibbets that was a Tarbox before she was married, and who knows, but she married a Titenmb! Jones-That's it; I know all about that. If you will look into Farmer's Register, you will find, that, as early as 1639 there was a Tarbex, in Lynn, who had eighteen children. There is nothing more Hitely to have imprened, than that one of them should marry a Tibbets-besides Bangs-I never said anything of such relation. Well, gentlemen, on the 3d of July 1834, Mr. Titeomb was-Smith-Was it in the ferencon? Bangs-It was, and about ten o'clock: Mr. Titcomb was-
